Packers bears history

Jonathan Daniel/Getty ImagesHow long have you and your main rival been in competition? Will the rivalry last for almost the next 100 years and count? Probably not. There is a rivalry in the National Football League, though, that can last a century. The NFL's longest rivalry - the Packers-Bears - started in 1921. How well do these organizations know each other? The NFC North Division teammates have been punching each other in the mouth for nearly 90 years. Bitter rivals since the days when teams did not wear helmets, they share similar traditions and customs. Neither team has a professional NFL cheerleading squad. The Packers use collegiate teams at home games. In 1976, chicago formed honey bears, but dumped them in 1985. The Bears haven't won a Super Bowl since. Getting rid of their honeys has proven to be bittersweet. Chicago leads the series with 92-83-6. Including the Bears' 61-7 victory in 1980, there have been several epic events, such as the time Packers legend Bart Starr confronted the Bears coaching staff after Chicago gave Green Bay one of the worst drubbings in Packers history. Here are some interesting stories for you. The 1941 season -- seven days after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor -- was the last time the Bears and Packers met in the playoffs. They played in the wake of arguably America's worst tragedy until then. It shows me how important football was in keeping the spirits of America up - much like the MLB playoffs after The 11th. The Bears won their last playoff game with the Packers, 33–14, on April 14, 2014. They also won the NFL Championship over the New York Giants later at Wrigley Field. The two clubs have won a total of 21 NFL titles in total - including four Super Bowls- Green Bay has a 3-1 edge over the Bears in Super Bowl victories. Of course, they can never play in the same Super Bowl because they've always been in the same division. The Packers won five championships in the 1960s - including the first two Super Bowls (1967-68). Their last Super Bowl victory was in 1997.The Bears in 1985-86 - one of the best football teams ever - won it by owning the New England Patriots. From the team owners down, the two clubs' stories make a lot of American football history and intrigue. Since 1919, Decatur State'sChicago Bears have had 16 coaches. Papa Bear George Halas was a player/coach from 1920 to 1967. George Halas or Papa Bear - as opposed to a sweeter-sounding Sugar Bear - is the man. He was born in Chicago and played football, baseball and basketball for the University of Illinois. Illini won the Big Ten football title in 1918. During World War I, he played for the Naval Station Great Lakes academy near North Chicago and was rose bowl MVP in 1919. He was a civil engineer and ensign during the war. Three other NFL awards are named after him. His rival was known packers player/coach Curly Lambeau of Lambeau Field in Green Wisc., Lambeau Field opened in 1957. The stadium's street address has been at 1265 Lombardi Avenue since 1968. Highland Avenue was renamed in honor of one of the most iconic trainers of all time. The Packers joined the NFL in 1921. Starting with Lambeau, the Packers have had 15 coaches in their history. Lambeau and George Whitney Calhoun are known to form the Green Bay Packers on May 11. Lambeau worked as a shipowner at the Indian Packing Company. It was owned in the principal of F.P. Constock and specialized in the canned meat market. Lambeau asked his bosses for money for jerseys and the use of the company's sports field in 1919. The team was known as the Packers.He played halfback from 1919 to 1929. He usually took the snap from the center in the wildcat formation. He was coach from 1921 to 1949, winning six NFL titles (1929, 1930, 1931, 1936, 1939 and 1944). He also threw the Packers' first official pass. The Packers have the option to bring the Lombardi Trophy back to the Lambeau Field family. They have to go through linebackers Lance Briggs, Brian Urlacher and the impressive Bears covering two shell defenses to do so. On Sunday, they will play the season series tiebreaker - a rare shell in this rivalry. The teams have previously met three times in a single season only seven times – in 1926, 1928-29, 1930-31, 1933 and 1941. Green Bay swept the Bears 3-0 in both 1928 and 1929 and outscored them 62-0 in three games in 1929. The Bears swept the Packers 3-0 in 1933. Winning the Halas Trophy in Chicago at Soldier Field would be one of the most sweeping victories in Packers lore. Soldier Field opened in 1924, but the Bears didn't call it home until 1971 - the year after the first NFC Championship game was played. Wrigley was their place. This year marks the fourth NFC Championship game at Soldier Field (1985, 1988, 2006, 2010). The Bears are 2-1 in those games - bringing home two trophies. Quarterback Aaron Rodgers is trying to stay warm in cold weather and expand the Packers legend by beating the Bears in the biggest game of his young career. Rodgers played in one of the coldest games in bears history. It was at Soldier Field in 2008, and the temperature was two degrees-minus-13 with wind chill at kickoff. A win against the Bears would have ended Chicago's playoff hopes, but the Bears went from losing 14-3. They scored after a turnover on a Packers punt return and blocked a final second field goal to send the game into overtime. After scoring in overtime, they won the game 20-17 on a 38-yard field goal by Robbie Gould. The Bears controlled Gold Coast in the 1940s and 1950s, winning the series 35-5-2. Under Lombardi from 1959 to 1967, the Packers went back to be made in the 1960s. The series was 11-9 in favor of the Bears in the 1970s, and the Bears won eight in a row from 1985 to 1988. On the flip side, Chicago lost every game to the Packers from 1994 to 96. The teams split the series in 2010. In their last meeting – the 2010 regular season finale – the Packers faced a win-or-go situation at home. The Bears had already secured the No. 2 seed and had little to gain by playing their starters. But coach Lovie Smith played them for the whole game. Chicago had a chance to eliminate Green Bay from the playoffs, but failed. The Bears (12-3) won 3-0, but the Packers (9-6) equalized in the third quarter. The Pack took the lead in the fourth quarter on a pass by Rodgers to Donald Lee. In the fourth quarter with 20 seconds left, Cutler was picked by Nick Collins, and it was a wrap. The Packers earned their No. 6 seed. On Sunday in the NFC Championship Game, Mike McCarthy can win his first NFC Championship as Packers head coach. A week after the American holiday honoring one of the world's greatest men, Lovie Smith can win her second Halas Trophy. The Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears have a history going back to 1921. The two teams have played 181 times in the regular season, and the Bears have a 91-84-6 edge. The two teams have also met only twice in the NFL playoffs. ... the week after the attack on Pearl Harbor, in 1941 and the NFC Championship Game from last season. The Bears won the contest 33-14 in 1941 at a place the Chicago Cubs still call home ... Wrigley Field. The Bears called Wrigley Field home from 1921 to 1970. The Bears also hosted five NFL Championship games at Wrigley Field. It wasn't until 1971 that the Bears used Soldier Field as their home base. The Packers won the NFC Championship Game 21–14 at Soldier Field in January 2011, and then also won Super Bowl XLV a few weeks later. The Packers know all about Soldier Field, which dates back to 1937, when the then-NFL champion Packers played the College All-Stars at the stadium near the shores of Lake Michigan. The Packers played at Soldier Field seven more times before 1970, when they played the College All-Stars again, which was the reward of the NFL champions every year from 1934-1976. Only twice, 1943 and 1944, was the game not played at Soldier Field, which was built in 1924. The Packers went 6-2 against the All-Stars in the eight games they played at that spot. The Bears moved to Soldier Field in 1971, and it has been home ever since, although the Bears played their games in Champaign (University of Illinois) in 2002, when Soldier Field was renovated. The Bears (especially George Halas) were a key ingredient in helping the Packers get a new stadium in 1957, when Halas helped rally the people of Green Bay to vote at a new City Stadium (later Lambeau Field). The Packers had three other homes before moving into their current home. From 1919 to 192, the Packers played at Hagemeister Park. From 1923 to 1924, the Packers used Bellevue Park as their home. And then from 1925-56, the Packers used the original city located right on east in Green Bay. Green Bay East high school still uses the degraded facility. On September 1, 1957, when the Packers defeated the Bears 21-17. In in addition to that, the Packers played in Milwaukee for several years for two or three games a year from 1933-94. The first Milwaukee home was Borchert Field, which the Packers used in 1933. The Packers then played at State Fair Park from 1934 to 1951 (the site of the 1939 NFL Championship Game). In 1952, the Packers used Marquette Stadium in Milwaukee. And from 1953-94, the Packers played at County Stadium (the site of the 1967 Western Conference Championship Game). The Packers have definitely enjoyed a home-field advantage at their home in Wisconsin. The Packers have a .654 winning percentage in Green Bay, while they had a .631 win percentage in Milwaukee. Overall, the winning percentage is 0.649. The Packers are already 6-0 at Lambeau Field in 2011.The Packers have really enjoyed a home-field advantage in the playoffs. The Packers are 13-3 at Lambeau Field, while they were 2-0 in Milwaukee. Lambeau Field has been the site of three NFL Championship games (1961, 1965 and 1967) and two NFC Championship Games (1996 and 2007). Much has been said about the intense hatred that Halas and Curly Lambeau had against each other, but it was really attributed to the game to their teams on the football field. Apart from that, both franchises helped each other out. For example, it was Halas who played an important role in getting league partners in 1922 to allow Green Bay and Lambeau back in the league after the Packers were banned for using college players illegally. Ironically, it was Halas who originally discovered that breach. The Packers and Lambeau paid back Halas and the Bears during the Great Depression, when they lent the Bears $1,500 to meet wages. Halas also helped the Packers after Lambeau left the franchise, as with the new stadium effort. But there were two other instances that really helped the team from Green Bay. First, along with Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns, Halas recommended Vince Lombardi to the Packers as they searched for a new head coach in 1959. That foresight would come back to bite Halas, as Lombardi and the Packers had a 13-5 record against Papa Bear from 1959-1967, not to mention the five NFL championships and the first two Super Bowl victories that Lombardi and his packers won. But the largest contribution Halas has ever made to help the franchise in Green Bay was in revenue sharing. Owners like Halas and the Mara family of the New York Giants helped the Packers get an equal share of the revenue given to nfl teams using the TV contracts that made the league a monster in the 1960s. Yes, there's been bad blood between the two franchises, but it was mostly on the field. No team has ever had a bigger impact nfl than the Packers and Bears. The Packers have won 13 NFL titles (most in the NFL), while the Bears have won nine. Included in that sum are the four Super Bowl victories by the Packers and the one Super Bowl victory by the Bears. The Bears have 26 players inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, while the Packers have 21. No team in the NFL has any more. Of course, there are Halas and Lambeau in the hall. And Lombardi. There are also players like Red Grange, Bronko Nagurski, Sid Luckman, Bill George, Gale Sayers, Dick Butkus, Mike Ditka, Walter Payton, Mike Singletary and Dan Hampton of the Bears.The Packers also have some notables, including Don Hutson, Johnny (Blood) McNally, Clarke Hinkle, Arnie Herber, Jim Taylor, Forrest Gregg, Bart Starr, Ray Nitschke, Herb Addeney, Willie Davis, Paul Hornung, Willie Wood, Henry Jordan , James Lofton and Reggie White. Yes, the Packers and Bears have a rich history with all their championships and Hall of Fame players and coaches. The stadiums they play in also have a rich history. The Packers will try to add to their amazing playoff history at Lambeau Field after this season. They have already secured a bye and the right to host an NFC Divisional Playoff Game at Lambeau. With a loss to the 49ers or a win against the Bears on Christmas Eve, the Packers will have secured home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs. The Packers will try to use the clear advantage to propel themselves to Indianapolis, where Super Bowl XLVI will be played. There, the Packers will try to become the second Green Bay team to win Super Bowl championships. Championship.
